Legislature Has Big Problems in Nine Days Left

By JACK MARTIN

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The 62nd General Assembly has nine work days left and about half that many major issues still to resolve. Included are proposals for more highway department funds; action on remedial legislation for the re-assessment program, and proposed university status for Arkansas State College at Jonesboro.

The Senate may vote today on two bills aimed at raising money for the Highway Department—but if passed they will raise less than they were meant to originally.

Both bills have been amended. One would boost the state gasoline tax by one-half cent instead of one-cent as in the original measure—and the special fuels tax by one-half cent, rather than two cents as originally.

The other bill would increase license fees on heavy trucks—an amendment exempted automobiles and pickup trucks from its provisions.

Sen. J. Lee Bearden of Leachville, sponsor of the bills, said last week he probably would ask for a vote on them today, and expressed doubt on their chances of passing.

He has another bill ready in case both fail. This would hike license fees on trucks.

More revenue is needed, the Highway Department says, to match federal aid funds for road construction. If tax increase proposals are defeated, a bond issue may be asked in the Legislature.

One knotty problem has been disposal of the General Assembly, the general appropriation bill. The Senate and House passed an amended version of the measure, one almost identical to the 1957 bill. Proposed increases in allocations and salary hikes for constitutional officers—contained in the original bill—were cut out.

These proposed increases probably will be brought up in separate measures this week. But the big stumbling block is gone.

With the general appropriation bill passed, other money measures now can be enacted. The Senate already has approved some; the House has done nothing on them.

Pending in the House is a package of remedial legislation for the re-assessment program. It includes a bill to move the entire Assessment Co-Ordination Department back under the Public Service Commission.

The re-assessment program requires counties to bring their property assessment up to 20 percent of valuation by next year. More than half of the states' 75 counties have complied, but drawn much criticism in the process.

Reassessment usually means higher assessments but tax rates haven't been adjusted to curb sudden, large increases in the actual amount of taxes paid.

Another drawback in the eyes of many legislators and citizens is that utilities would be paying less than the tax rates were lowered because they have been assessed at 20 percent of valuation previously.

The move to make Arkansas state College a university may trigger a battle in the House this week, if it comes up. A bill granting the name change has passed the Senate.

Another important bill awaiting action would provide for a local option election at Hot Springs on the question of legalized gambling.

Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs, its sponsor, has indicated he feels chances for its passage are good.

Farm Family for 250 Years Quits

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (AP)—Raymond T. Luce, 57, has left the farm his family worked for 250 years.

With none of his five children inclined to take up farming, Luce, a potato grower, leased his 60 acres and put his machinery on the auction block during the week-end.

He said industrialized agriculture forced him to either expand or give up the land that was sold by his family in nearby Jamesport in 1760.

Congress Is Worried Over Berlin Crisis

By JOE F. KANE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress members spent a busy week-end giving opinions on the Berlin situation. The individual suggestions ranged from advice to take it easy on the diplomatic quarter-backing to a call for mobilization of additional troops.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, cautioned his colleagues against forcing President Eisenhower into a negotiating straitjacket.

Fulbright's reminder that the President has the basic responsibility for foreign policy was similar to that sounded earlier by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), Senate Republican leader.

Fulbright said no football team can expect to win a game with every man his own quarterback.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the Senate majority leader, said the nation would stand united behind the President in the Berlin crisis.

The world expects to hear something more than partisan pride from Washington, he told a week-end meeting of Democrats.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) called for mobilization of four or five Army and National Guard divisions. He said such a move would be "a diplomatic signal to the Soviet Union that we mean business."

Macmillan said in a prepared Moscow speech released here by the Foreign Office: "For such acts must, to use your own Prime Minister's words, produce dangerous situations."

Macmillan declared "improved relations between the countries can be achieved 'if we can make a start and go forward step by step.'"

"Agreement on one thing, he added, 'leads to agreement on another. It's the first step that counts. That's why I'm here.'"

Macmillan said he thought it would help if there were "thousands of visits to each other's countries by ordinary people."

"In the present state of the world, military conflict between great powers can bring victory to no one but must mean disaster for all," he said.

"Similarly, in the political field, an attempt to gain total victory may well produce disaster. So let us work together with patience and understanding."

Precipitation predicted by the U.S. Weather Bureau for the period mid-February to mid-March indicates light to moderate amounts for most of the country.

Temperature for the period mid-February to mid-March is expected to exceed normal in most parts of the nation, except for northern portions of the East and Middle West.

Says British, USSR Must Avoid Trouble

LONDON (AP)—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan told Soviet television viewers tonight Britain and the U.S.S.R. "should each avoid acts which disturb the existing position anywhere in the world to the others disadvantage."

Macmillan said in a prepared Moscow speech released here by the Foreign Office: "For such acts must, to use your own Prime Minister's words, produce dangerous situations."

Accidents in Arkansas Take Eight Persons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents killed eight persons in Arkansas during the seven-day period ending last midnight. Three of them died in a head-on collision near Natural Dam, north of Van Buren, yesterday.

Five took one life, a plane crash killed two persons and there was one shooting fatality.

The auto crash yesterday killed Charles Tripp, 40, of Springfield; William Branscum, 40, of Little Rock; and Lloyd Mongold, 21, of Natural Dam.

Mongold's young wife was hospitalized at Van Buren. She was reported in satisfactory condition.

Tripp and Branscum were in a sports car which collided with a Mongold's automobile on a curve on state Highway 59 about 2 miles north of Natural Dam.

The sports car was leading a rally of the Northwest Arkansas Sports Car Club. State Trooper Ed Blackard said. He said Tripp's wife was riding in another vehicle in the motorcade.

Lloyd Morris, 28, of Hot Springs, was killed when he was hit by a car while crossing a street at Hot Springs yesterday.

Police said Morris was struck by an automobile driven by Joe Sonzini, 18, of Hot Springs. Sonzini told officers the victim ran unexpectedly into the path of his car.

William Joseph Cross, 20, of the Eagle Mills community near Camden, was shot fatally while firing at targets with two friends at Camden yesterday.

Police said Cross and two brothers, Herman, 21, and Roy, 17, both of Camden, were shooting at tin cans near the Belt home. Each had a .25-caliber rifle.

Officers said Cross apparently stepped in the line of fire and was hit in the chest. He was dead on arrival at a Camden hospital.

A coroner's verdict of accidental death was returned.

Cross lived with friends Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wilson of Eagle Mills. Survivors include two brothers, both of Camden.

Gulf Workers End 33-Day Walkout

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP)—Gulf Oil Co. refinery workers today ended a 33-day walkout set off by an attempt to reclassify some employees.

Company and spokesman for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union in a joint statement said the agreement ending the strike allows Gulf more flexibility in fixing job classifications but no impairment of traditional craft lines.

The agreement includes the five percent wage increase granted most other industry workers in 1959 contracts. Union sources said the average hourly pay previously was $2.71.

The increase is retroactive to Jan. 16. The new contract is for one year.

Air Force Says 'Discoverer' May Be in Orbit

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—The Air Force believes the Discoverer I rocket may have gone into some kind of orbit—and is simply having trouble raising its voice enough to let the world know for sure.

Authorities say tracking stations have picked up "sporadic signals" tending "to confirm that an orbit has been attained." Further checks will be made, they say, to try to pin down the uncommunicative rocket.

Discoverer I, the first space vehicle aimed into an orbit which would carry it over both the North and South poles, was launched Saturday from Vandenberg Air Force Base, 170 miles north of Los Angeles.

A Navy ship 900 miles south of the base received faint signals from the bullet-shaped missile shortly after it was fired. Then, for hours, there was nothing.

Officials speculated something may have gone wrong with the radio equipment in the 1,300-pound projectile.

Sunday night the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division reported: "Additional study of data received for a nine-minute period after lift-off supports the accuracy of preliminary information about launch trajectory and orbit injection. Tracking stations have since picked up random signals on the frequency of the Discoverer radio beacon, which approximates the predicted position of the satellite."

All this, the Air Force said, tends "to confirm that an orbit has been attained."

"Attempts to track the satellite are continuing," the announcement said. "Additional contracts should assist in defining the precise orbit."

Of the random signals received so far, authorities said, the most reliable were picked up by tracking stations at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., Annette, Alaska, and Vandenberg.

The Air Force said the information at hand suggests Discoverer may be circling the earth about once every 90 minutes. It said the preliminary data indicate the rocket is about 140 miles from the earth at the point of its closest approach and 550 miles away at the farthest point.

The frequency at which Discoverer's radio was supposed to broadcast has been kept secret. This prompted criticism from some scientists, who say that withholding such information may have prevented trackers from locating the rocket.

Continuance Granted by Supreme Court

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A continuance until 30 days after expiration of the Legislature was granted by the Arkansas Supreme Court today in a case in which State Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs is an attorney.

Hurst contended that Circuit Judge P. E. Dobbs of Hot Springs was attempting to force an early trial in the case.

The Supreme Court agreed with Hurst that he is entitled to a postponement by law because he now is serving in the General Assembly.

Hurst is an attorney for James Alva Wise and Lewis Edward Jones, charged with possession of narcotics and burglary tools.

Associate Justice Jim Johnson last week issued a temporary order prohibiting Dobbs from proceeding in the case. The Supreme Court continued that order for remainder of the legislative session plus the additional 30-day period.

The Legislature ends on March 2.

School Board at Little Rock Fails to Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A specially called meeting of the Little Rock School Board never got off the ground yesterday, but three members failed to show.

After three members, who had been called to discuss a plan to open the city's four high schools in defiance of federal courts, lingered for a few minutes at the school administration building and then left, they were Everett Tucker Jr., Ted Lamb and Matson Jr.

Tucker said the three missing members apparently had not received telegrams notifying them of the meeting. The missing members were R.W. Laster, who was in court-defying plan, and Ed L. McKinley, who was in court.

The meeting was widely expected.

Tucker read a statement reflecting his, Lamb's and Matson's plan to open the schools on a segregated basis, despite federal court orders. The same three members said Saturday that the board should have a plan of controlled integration.

"They did not discuss such a plan yesterday."

"Any plan to open our schools in open defiance of courts and laws would quickly lead to total and complete integration of all our schools," the statement said.

The three called themselves "segregationists" but realistic segregationists.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who closed the high schools last September rather than integrate them, referred to all three during the school election campaign last December as "integrationists."

Tucker, Matson and Lamb generally are regarded as antagonistic to Faubus' school policies.

McKinley, Rowland and Laster had Faubus' endorsement during the campaign.

met yesterday with members of the Pulaski County delegation to the Arkansas House to plot strategy against a pending bill, backed by Faubus, which would empower him to name three new members to the school board and break the deadlock between pro and anti-Faubus forces.

After the huddle with the legislators they issued a statement stating their opposition to the bill, calling it "an insult to the people of Little Rock to have taken away their right to elect their own representatives on the local school board."

Rep. Gayle Windsor said the bill probably will be called up for a vote in the House today. It is sponsored by another Pulaski representative, T.E. Tyler.

I looked at the floor. There was still a smear of dark brown on the cement, in patches, the blood of Nick Pagano, husband and father. I could imagine the multiple impact, the sickening thuds, the blinding pain, Nick Pagano slamming backward to the cement floor, bewildered and hurt and dying.

"You can't tell a thing about it now," McIntyre said, "and you know it. The grinder that Pagano was on only turned up about eight thousand surface feet per minute. When the wheel broke it was not even close to standard speed. In fact, the boys tell me that Pagano had just mounted it, started the grinder and applied the casting when it let loose."

"Pagano broke a safety rule right there," Quincy said. "You know that now grinding wheel should run for at least half a minute before any work is applied to it. And there's something else — he was not using a guard."

"Nuts," McIntyre's voice was grating. "If we followed all the rules we'd never move any castings out of this shop."

"That may be," Quincy said, "but if he had tested the wheel before putting work on it, and had used a guard, he'd be alive right now."

McIntyre shook a finger at Quincy. "I'm telling you now that well never buy another Buckeye wheel — not if I have anything to say about it."

"A voice from the doorway said 'You haven't got anything to say about it, Mac.'"

Two men were standing in the doorway. One was short and chunky, with fat cheeks and sharp little blue eyes. He was careless and in the pocket of his shirt was a battery of cigars. The other man was tall and slim, black-haired, brown-eyed, very poised in a silky summer-weight suit the color of wet sand. Apparently the chunky man had spoken, because he said to McIntyre, "I'm still purchasing agent, Mac. You can recommend what wheels you want, but the buying is up to me. Understand?"

McIntyre flushed. Before he could speak, the chunky man said, "I know you've been having a little trouble with Buckeye wheels lately, but nevertheless we get more production from them than from any other make. And any manufacturer can slip once in a while." He rocked an eyebrow at McIntyre. "I seem to recall, Mac, that we've shipped some faulty castings — and they passed inspection, too."

McIntyre's flush deepened. "Listen, Archer," he blurted, "a lousy Buckeye wheel killed" one of our men this morning."

"I know. Very unfortunate." The chunky man turned to Quincy. "Hello, Larry. I guess I can imagine why you're here."

He nodded at the broken chunks of abrasive. "Any particular reason for that?"

"We're trying to find out," Quincy said. "He nodded at me. 'This is Mr. Bennett. He's in sales. Bennett, met Archer. Koller, purchasing agent for Portage.'"

I shook hands with Koller, who then introduced Quincy and me to the slender, poised man. His name was John Simmons and he was sales representative for the Blue Ridge Grinding Wheel Company. As he grasped my hand, showing white even teeth, I remembered that I was supposed to be an ex-employee of the Blue Ridge company. I hoped that Quincy would keep quiet about it. But he said to Simmons, "Blue Ridge? Then you should know Bennett. He worked for them before he came to Buckeye."

Simmons gazed at me curiously. "I know most of the people at the home office. What did you do there?"

I thought fast, silently cursing Quincy. I said, "I didn't work at the home office. I was in sales."

"Oh?" Simmons raised smooth black eyebrows. "What territory?"

"Cleveland, northeastern Ohio, northern Pennsylvania and upper New York." As long as I was lying I decided to make it good.

"Well, well," Simmons said, smiling. "They really gave you a chunk, didn't they?"

"They were spreading me too thin," I said.

"I see." I didn't like the way Simmons was eyeing me. "Cleveland your home town?"

"Yes." I turned to Quincy. "We'd better be getting back to the plant."

The evening before I'd checked into an establishment called the Maple Inn, a sprawling white frame structure with green shutters.

In my comfortable room I removed my coat and hat and was washing my hands and face when the phone rang. I went to it towel in hand, and picked it up.

"Mr. Bennett?" It was a man's voice.

"This is John Simmons, of Blue Ridge Grinding. We met this afternoon."

"Oh, yes," I said. "At the Portage Foundry in Toledo."

"That's right," I called Buckeye but you weren't there. I figured you were staying at the inn." He hesitated, and then said softly, "I think you and I should have a little talk."

"Go ahead and talk."

"I'm downstairs in the bar," he said. "Will you join me?"

I said, "All right, I'll be right down."

Army Back at Work on Moon Probe Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Army Missiles went back to work on their lunar probe rocket today after failing Sunday night to launch a satellite past the moon and into a solar orbit.

The 76-foot rocket, Juno II, stood poised in floodlights for a half hour and the firing crew had progressed to within minutes of target time when the shot was postponed. No reason was given officially, but it was learned that a power failure caused the decision to scrub.

Another effort could be made tonight, Tuesday or Wednesday while the moon is in favorable proximity to earth, 221,000 miles away. After that, a month's delay would be necessary until the moon again swings into the correct position.

All that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration would say about the postponement was that it was due to "technical difficulties."

The launching — similar to the first Army space probe, Dec. 8 — will be another attempt to fire a gold-plated payload more than a half million miles above the earth to become an artificial planet of the sun. The Soviets say they turned the trick with a 1½ ton Lunik satellite Jan. 4.

As in the first flight, the cone-shaped Pioneer probe will carry special instruments to measure two radiation bands that hang over the earth starting at about 1,000 miles.

The Army crewmen, working on a precise timetable, missed their first chance to fire within a 10-minute deadline Sunday night when trouble developed during the countdown. Before they could make another attempt, the azimuth direction ring at the base of the missile had to be readjusted to compensate for the rotation of the earth and moon during the time lag.

Foul weather has blanketed the Cape for the past four days. A steady rain fell for hours Sunday night, but the skies began to clear shortly before launch time.

This is the fifth and last space probe authorized as part of the International Geophysical Year program. However, many more daring space ventures are expected during 1959.

More Work, Less Play
Can End Teen Boredom

Dear Dorothy Dix:
This is in answer to the teen-ager who wanted to know if grown-ups didn't have a responsibility to provide amusement for us. Naturally the answer is "yes," but kids should consider that a parent's responsibility covers quite a bit of territory. It entails long hours of hard work earning the total cost of a child's upkeep, running a comfortable home for him and doesn't leave much time to provide recreation for him. I think we teen-agers are duty bound to avoid boredom by using our time to return equivalent value — services, understanding, co-operation and other forms of appreciation for the bargain we are getting from our folks. They give us food, clothing, shelter, education and countless privileges, expecting little or nothing in return. Well, let's put some of our energy to work proving that there's something in our noggin besides rock 'n' roll, cha-cha, and boys, boys, boys. — Ernestine L.

Dear Ernestine: It would warm any parent's heart just to know that his teen-ager has some inkling of what a job parenthood is. Teen-agers certainly wouldn't bore as easily as they do if they do if they had more home tasks to do. Usually they do have chores but these are accomplished by parental prodding more often than not. Tackling these jobs voluntarily, efficiently and completely would accomplish a double purpose — please the parent and entertain (?) the youngster. I'm sure your letter, Ernestine, will inspire many young cots to appreciate their folks a bit more.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
After three years of steady dating my boy friend has left me. We never married as he didn't want to leave his mother. Now he's going with another girl because he can have more fun with her and she won't nag him to get married. I'd be thankful for any suggestions about getting him back. — Karin

Dear Karin: I really don't see how you can get him back when you didn't have him in the first place — didn't have him lassoed, that is. He doesn't want you, he never did want you. Can't you see that he isn't worth the smallest effort to get back? Your ex-boy friend is a heel and women who love heels don't rate, or deserve, respect from anyone — even them selves.

Dear Dorothy Dix:
Last summer while working for my father, I became interested in the daughter of a woman who is one of his permanent staff. I wanted to continue the friendship but I knew and wouldn't approve of me associating with the "help." Dad wants me to go back this summer for more experience and of course I'll meet the girl again. I'd still like to go out with her. How can I manage it? — Richard N.

Dear Dickie: Confess. Didn't you copy this from a novel of the early century? People stopped objecting to mingling with the "help" along about the first world war and with the second, the "help" began to be discriminating about mingling with the bosses.

Send your problem to Dorothy Dix. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her in care of Hope Star.

Evacuated Group Returned to Homes

DANVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Some 125 persons, evacuated Sunday after a freight train carrying chemicals from the Atomic Energy Commission was derailed, were allowed to return to their homes in nearby Geneva early today.

Explosions, apparently set off by the impact of the crash, caused fires that burned out of control in the 28 derailed cars of the southern Kentucky community because they didn't know what the cargo contained and feared further explosions.

An AEC spokesman at Oak Ridge, Tenn., said the chemicals were highly inflammable but not radioactive.

Two railroad employees were hospitalized after inhaling chemical fumes and five firemen were treated for exhaustion.

Seeks to Halt Nuclear Tests
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho) proposed today that the United States seek an agreement with the Soviet Union to halt nuclear tests in the earth's atmosphere. Attempts to control tests—interground, under water or in outer space—would be up to future negotiations.

Church said such a new approach might serve to avoid complete collapse of the test ban talks in Geneva.

In a speech prepared for the Senate, he said only nuclear explosions in the earth's atmosphere contribute to pollution of the air.

The grave cause of so much world concern.

His proposal, similar to one recently advanced by Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn.), was submitted to the State Department last week, Church said.

Views on the Berlin crisis are pressed over the weekend ranged from advice to take it easy on the diplomatic quarterbacking to a call for mobilization of additional troops.

Play Goes Into

Final Week

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer

College basketball goes into the final week of the regular season today with 42 teams needed to fill the brackets in the four major post season tournaments.

There are 12 spots left for the big boys' eight in the NCAA 23-team university division and four in the 12-team National Invitation Tournament starting March 12 at New York's Madison Square Garden.

The NCAA also has four unfilled brackets for its 32-team small college championship, winding up with the eight regional winners meeting at Evansville, Ind., March 11-13. Games Monday and Tuesday will complete the field.

The NAIA, which brings together 32 small college teams in a week-long tourney starting in Kansas City March 16, still has 26 spots open. They will be filled in playoffs this week. Tennessee A&I, winner the last two years, already has accepted an invitation.

Here is how the NCAA major championship shapes up in the four regions, from which will come the winners for the championship semifinals and finals at Louisville March 20-21:

EASTERN—West Virginia, winner of the Southern Conference Tournament for the fifth straight year, St. Joseph's of Philadelphia, best in the Middle Atlantic Conference, and Navy, an at-large entry, are in.

Still to be named are winners of the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament starting at Raleigh, N.C., Thursday, the Ivy League and Yankee Conference representatives, and an at-large team. Princeton and Dartmouth are tied for the Ivy lead at 12-1 and will meet in a playoff if they both win their final games this week. Connecticut has clinched at least a tie in the Yankee Conference.

MIDWEST—Eastern Kentucky of the Ohio Valley Conference; Kentucky, named SEC representative when conference winner Mississippi State declined because it doesn't play against Negroes; Michigan State, champion of the State tournament at Little Rock. The all tournament district team included Hicks of Cale, Stanton of Saratoga, Lamb of Delight and Dyer of Mineral Springs.

England won the Class A senior girls state championship Saturday night by taking Manila 55-52. Manila won the title last year in Jones Field House here. England's Janeela Bowie scored 40 of her team's points and scored the winning three points with 8 seconds to play.

Matter of Fact

Glue has long been used in China and India to disperse lampblack and carbon black in ink. To make Chinese or Indian ink, they use, however, has perhaps the oldest record of glue and its use. There is a painting on the walls of the tomb of Rechemars at Thebes in southern Egypt which shows glue being used in veneer work more than 3,000 years ago.

Rules States Can Procure Witnesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld validity of a uniform law adopted by 42 states to enable them to procure witnesses from each other in criminal proceedings.

Justice Frankfurter delivered the 7-2 decision. Justice Douglas wrote a dissent in which Justice Black concurred.

The court ruled in a test case in which the district attorney of New York County in New York State sought an order by the Dade County, Fla., Circuit Court to compel a union official to appear before a grand jury in New York County. The grand jury was investigating use of labor union funds.

The official, Joseph C. O'Neill, is president of the Distillery, Rectifying, Wine & Allied Workers' International Union of America. A resident of Elmwood, a suburb of Chicago, he was attending a union convention in Miami at the time of the New York request in April, 1956.

O'Neill contested the New York request and won decisions by the Florida Circuit Court and the Florida Supreme Court that the uniform law violated the U.S. Constitution.

In another decision today, the court ruled 7-2 that consecutive sentences may be given under the federal narcotics law for illegal chase of heroin and receiving heroin knowing it was illegally imported. Justice Clark delivered the majority opinion. Again Justices Black and Douglas dissented.

The decision upheld the 10 years imprisonment imposed on Nathaniel Harris who was arrested in St. Louis, Mo., in 1956 after 224 grains of heroin were found in an apartment. Harris was given five-year consecutive sentences on a count of unlawful purchase of heroin, and on a count of receiving heroin unlawfully imported.

Big Increase in State Tax Revenue

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas' tax revenue for February showed a $331,490 increase over February 1958, acting Revenue Commissioner E. B. McLes said today.

The state collected $31,912,123 from all sources last month.

McLes said most of the increase was derived from the sales tax, indicating Arkansians had more money to spend now that during last years recession.

Total tax collections for the first eight months of the fiscal year amounted to $92,190,336, an increase of $3,105,246 over the corresponding period in 1957-58.

The sales tax brought in $3,811,279 in February, compared to $3,592,377 in February 1958.

ters meeting to discuss the whole issue of German reunification. The West also restated its determination not to be driven out of Berlin, saying it could not accept the Soviet's unilateral ending of the World War II occupation.

Khrushchev in his speech last week also stuck to the long-standing Soviet position on German reunification, that it must be negotiated by the two German governments and not by the Big Four. West Germany, with full Allied backing, refuses to recognize the East German regime to the extent of holding political negotiations. Macmillan told Soviet leaders in Leningrad Sunday night that his talks with Khrushchev, while yielding no immediate results, "will be of great assistance in the international discussions which must lie ahead."

"I say that these discussions must lie ahead because I firmly believe that the dangerous situation with which we may be faced cannot be resolved without negotiations," Macmillan declared.

A foreign ambassador in Moscow said Khrushchev had told him he is not pessimistic about the talks with Macmillan. But he said the Soviet premier still insists there must be a peace treaty with both East and West Germany and liquidation of the Western occupation of West Berlin.

The envoy said Khrushchev seemed surprised at the West's shock at his speech in the Krem-

"It was only an electioneering speech," the ambassador quoted Khrushchev. "I know it has been suggested that I should not have made the speech until Mr. Macmillan left. But the election of legislative members in nine of the Soviet republics was to be Sunday, before he left, and I owed it to my voters to explain what is happening."

Khrushchev also denied to the ambassador that the toothache which he said had prevented his accompanying Macmillan to Leningrad was a diplomatic illness.

Sports Fans Mourn Death of Abbie Booth

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation's sports fans today mourned Albert (Albie) Booth—the man who emulated heroic action with his athletic feats at Yale.

The former football star who was 51, died of a heart attack early Sunday morning after enduring a Broadway play with his wife.

Booth was the second Yale football great to die within two weeks. Bruce Caldwell, who preceded Booth at the New Haven, Conn., school, died Feb. 15 after a long illness. He was 53.

Booth was still a well known figure to football fans. He was one of the country's top football officials and officiated at such classics as the Army-Navy game.

Booth managed an ice cream company in New Haven. He is survived by his wife, Marion, and two daughters. He was a resident of Danbury, Conn. (The New Haven substitute.)

Booth played the athletic scene at Yale from 1929-31. He played football, basketball and baseball, winning eight varsity letters and enshrining himself as the greatest of Yale's athletes.

Court Refuses to Issue Order

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court today refused an order which Mayor Howell B. Price of West Memphis had sought to prevent Crittenden Chancellor Lee Ward from acting in a suit involving the mayor.

The court denied a writ of prohibition under which ward could not have proceeded in the suit of Cecil U. Edmonds of West Memphis, who seeks to force appointment by the mayor and City Council of a Board of Public Affairs and filing of a financial report.

However, the high court said that Circuit Court was the proper tribunal for the suit. It suggested that a motion for transfer be filed and added that such a request should be approved.

Police Seek Clue in Calif. Kidnaping

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police said today they hoped for some clue that would lead them to an ailing kidnaped baby and a baby-sitter who wanted a child of her own.

The baby boy is one of twins born just eight weeks ago to a widowed mother of six children. The infant has been missing since early Saturday from his home in suburban Ontario.

The mother, Ruth Flores, 35, went out Friday evening and when she returned shortly after midnight the twin, Eric, and the baby-sitter were gone but her other five children were still there.

Mrs. Flores told police the baby-sitter, a woman about 25 to 30 years of age, had identified herself as "Ann Williams." Police say they believe this was not her real name.

Mrs. Flores said the woman had offered to babysit for her, had told her she was unmarried and said: "Isn't it too bad a single woman who wants a baby and can support one can't adopt one?"

But for another southern California woman fears had turned to joy. Her kidnaped boy was rescued by officers from a former mental patient, Wayne Murray Jr., 7, was taken from the vicinity of his home in suburban Venice Saturday afternoon.

Police in Bishop, Calif., acting on a tip from a Los Angeles bus ticket seller, found Wayne in a cheap hotel room with William Harris Elwell, 28, who had been sought by Venice police on a kidnaping charge.

The mother, Mrs. Wayne Murray, is expecting another child.

CORNING, Ark. (AP)—One of two candidates in a mayors race which will be decided here tomorrow is Mrs. R. O. Smith, the first woman ever to seek the office. Mrs. Smith, co-owner of a furniture store, opposes Thomas George.

The election was called to fill the unexpired term of the late Mayor Frankie Johnson, who died Jan. 24. There are 22 months left in his term.
